The bride was charming in a white net dress and wore a full length veil held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses and her only ornament was a gold locket, a gift from the groom. The bridesmaid, Miss Lorna Miller, sister of the groom, wore a full length gown of peach taffeta and the maid of honor, Miss Mildred Dann, wore a full length gown of blue net. Each carried a bouquet of carnations.

The groom's best men were Darwin Miller and Ernie Norton and the bride was given away by her brother, Mr. George Gooch. Mr. Harold Hellevang acted as usher and the wedding march was played by Miss Norma Randle. Following the ceremony a reception was held at Christie's restaurant, with twenty-five friends and relatives present. Major C. R. Robson will be one of the officers of Alberta Reserve Army units taking part in "Exercise North" on the Alaska Highway from August 26 to September 8.

The purpose of "Exercise North" is to familiarize reserve army officers with conditions on the highway and in the surrounding country, with a view to further training schemes on a larger scale. Approximately forty vehicles, including recovery and repair vehicles, will convey the officers along the highway as far as the northern town of Whitehorse. During the move north stops will be made at various points to allow reconnaissance of the surrounding country. In addition, this reconnaissance will allow checking of bridges and highway condition.

Major Robson served in the Royal Canadian Artillery during the past war and was stationed at the large training centre at Shilo, Manitoba. He is Officer Commanding the Vulcan Detachment, Calgary Highlanders (R).

End National Registration

National registration ended on August 15, by order of council. Since registration cards became necessary in 1940, a great many people have never had occasion to use their registration cards, but it was regarded as a necessary, wartime check-up.

Simultaneously with this abolition of registration cards there is provision for dropping charges for violation of service mobilization records. The number of men not located across Canada is 6,553. The number of actual army delinquents is placed at 1563.

There were 7,862,920 persons carrying registration cards in 1940 and this has since increased.

Information yielded by the registration was used for military call up, procurement of skilled workers for essential industries, indexing technical personnel listing doctors and nurses, identifying individuals for a variety of purposes and listing certain foreign nationals of Allied nations available for military service under those countries.

In addition to their official uses registration cards found wide use for identification purposes. Police organizations had urged that they be retained as a means of identification. The certificates were used by the provinces in identifying holders of liquor ration books and also were frequently accepted by banks to identify persons cashing cheques.

All restrictions on sale of new cars as has been removed and there are no more priorities, at this is not making them much more available.

There have been 5,542 pheasants released in various parts of the province. These were hatched from Brooks rearing farms. It was in 1908 that the first pheasant were released in Alberta, mainly round Midnapore.

First Load Spring Wheat Delivered

The first load of spring wheat was delivered in Vulcan on Monday, Aug. 19, to the Alberta Pacific Grain Co., from the farm of Mike Orchard in the east district. The grain was a bit on the light side and it is not thought that combining will be general in the district before the end of this week.

Patriquin-MacNeil Wedding Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Constance Edith MacNeil, daughter of Mrs. Alex MacNeil, of Port Wallis, N.S., and Earl Mackenzie Patriquin, of Vulcan, took place at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Meskanaw, Sask., on June 24th.

The bride entered the church, which was decorated with summer flowers, on the arm of F. E. Larson. She looked lovely in a floor length dress of pale pink chiffon with matching hat and a corsage of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. W. Richard Morrow, of Meskanaw, who wore her wedding gown of pale blue lace with pink carnation corsage and matching hat.

The groom's gift to the bride was a three-strand pearl necklace and earrings. He was attended by W. Richard Morrow.

After the ceremony a luncheon was held at the home of the Misses Traill. Rev. J. J. Hales proposed the toast to the bride. The newly-married couple left the same day for Vulcan, where they will reside. Mrs. Patriquin was formerly of Halifax.

Partridge Open Late This Year

A reduction in bag limits and in season for game birds has been announced by the government for the coming season.

The duck and goose season in the south-half of the province is from Sept. 14 to Nov. 28 inclusive. Bag limit for geese is 5 per day and 25 for the season. Limit for duck is 15 per day (not more than 8 may be of a species other than mallard) and a season total of 150. No one must have more than 60 ducks in his possession at any time.

Hungarian partridge season opens Oct. 14 and closes Nov. 30. Five per day is allowed, and 25 for the season.

Pheasants are open for the same period, with 4 per day and 24 per season, except in the L.I.D. where 5 a day and 30 for the season are permitted.

A change affecting resident farmers is the decision to restrict to their own farm territory the hunting of game birds during the open season without license or permit. Previously resident farmers were entitled to hunt game birds without permit or license within three large zones of the province providing he did so within the zone nearest his residence.

Baseball Teams Tied in Fight For Wheatbelt League Cup

Champion Wins First Game 6-4.
Vulcan Takes Second 8-5.
Winner of Third Game Takes Wheatbelt League Cup.

Playing at the local ball park on Sunday, Vulcan evened the score with Champion in the final series for the Wheatbelt Baseball League Cup, donated by the Rev. Peter Dawson.

The first game in the two out of three series was played at Champion the previous Sunday and was won by the Champion team with a 6 to 4 score. It was a closely contested game and Vulcan led up until the eighth inning, when Champion drove in three runs to win by a comfortable margin. Batteries were Siler and Watt for Champion and Willard and Spaeth for Vulcan. Bernard, of Champion, was the umpire.

In the second game, played on August 18th, the final score was Vulcan 8, Champion 5. A large crowd of spectators saw an exciting ball game. Champion got an early lead, scoring four runs in the first inning and one in the second, and held their lead until the sixth inning. In this inning, Jantzie and Spaeth hit safely and the next batter, Dann, walked. Then a series of four costly errors lost the ball game for Champion allowing Vulcan to score six runs in the one inning. Vulcan had previously score two runs in the fourth and the score remained unchanged at 8-5 at the end of the game.

Siler for Champion and Fisher for Vulcan both pitched good, tight ball. Vulcan starting pitcher was Dann, followed by Johnston and then Fisher. Catchers were Watt for Champion and Spaeth for Vulcan. C. Cook was umpire.

Information as to the date and place of the third game was not available at the time of writing.

SPACE AND TOLERANCE

A famous American writer has recently completed a quite intensive tour of her native land, and one of the comments she made was "I saw thousands of nice looking people decorating the landscape and God's part of America is certainly incomparable."

Her final words could probably be truly said of most countries. God's part is usually incomparable. Certainly it can be said of Canada, and of no part more truly than this west of ours. Everything is on Godlike scale in majesty and immensity. The mountains, the plains, the great blue dome overhead, are all evidences of God's most generous mood; designed, one might think, for a generous and large-minded people.

Something of that sort must have been in the mind of one westerner who travels widely, but always "home" to the west. He says: "I begin to feel a sort of expansiveness when I reach Winnipeg on the westbound trip. And I always keep expecting the people to be larger and most tolerant as I push farther west—more in keeping with their natural environment. It's a great shock to find some of them as mean and narrow in outlook as if they had never stood on the peak of a western hill, nor seen the golden sweep of a western sunset

Almost everyone will understand what an old Al-Bertan means when he says: "I've jogged round a lot, but I always feel I've got to come back to foothill country to feel I'm really out of doors."

Western people become accustomed to that feeling of space and cleansing wind. They scarcely realize how much it is a part of them until they get into "smaller up" places; into crowded cities, or snug little farm areas where physical horizons are limited. Men and nature seem too circumscribed in such setting, and there is instinctive craving for space where things fit loosely and there is room for a man to turn round without rubbing shoulders against a score of others.

Have Albertans any characteristics traceable to physical environment, any qualities that are a reflection of the large scale surroundings? We do seem to be a direct and candid people. Any country whose pattern is visible for vast distances is poorly adapted for furtiveness and the carrying of dark repressed grudges. It is all too open. Perhaps on the other hand there is lack of imaginativeness and lack of reverence for the unseen which is associated with people in close knit, ancient and more mysterious lands. There is so little that is apt to creep up on us unaware.

Perhaps we reach a good average of fearlessness because we have encountered so few threats of man or nature that have brought us literally to our knees. We have had no end of trials but little devastation that we have been unable to survive.

But surely we cannot claim much conscious earnest effort to be worthy of our environment. We don't strive overmuch to attain the stature of our everlasting hills and the calm of our broad plains. We might work harder than we do to be bigger of heart, mind and body. We might put higher value on strong bodies and vigorous, tolerant minds. We might seek to develop an outlook more in harmony with the incomparable surroundings with which God has endowed us. Pettiness and malice should be foreign to our natures, but they are not.

Pertinent Topics

Discussed by H.C.

Mr. Coldwell admits he has had several propositions made him in a sort of semi-official way to become the federal Liberal leader, succeeding Mr. King. He does well to name no names for they would be sure to deny it, or find themselves in the dog-house. He has earned recognition nevertheless. He is the first opposition leader in history who made it his duty to harass the opposition. In this way he performed yeoman service—to the government and is entitled to its gratitude, and some preferment as well.

Members of the Industrial Relations committee of parliament need not be so eager to effect a settlement by making steel operators split the difference. Further troubles are as likely to occur whether the increase is 10 cents or 12½ an hour, because that is in line with the policy of those who direct C.I.O. policy of the Comintern and the interest of the Soviets.

The Canadian government intends to cancel a debt of thirty-five million dollars owed by Italy, and there will be no kick coming from those M.P.'s who opposed any gift to Britain.

A newspaper heading says that Hughes Lapointe, War Parliamentary Under-Secretary, "spies story that army hoards nails." While at it, he might also nail the story that the army hoards spikes.

Moscow predicted the rash of strikes in North America and well it might. A clergyman asked a little boy how his father was, who had been ill for a while. The boy said his father was going to die. "My, My," said the clergyman, "Why do you say that?" and the boy replied: "Well, the doctor says so, and he knows what he gave him."

Russian delegates walked out of the conference when Mr. King spoke and they did not attend the party given at the Canadian Embassy. They must be sore about something—probably Canada's refusal to let them kill Goushenko.

The Montreal Star says a great many Canadians are asking themselves: "Why are the authorities afraid to enforce the law against illegal picketing?" They may not be afraid at all. They may just be relying on the Star supporting them, whether or not, when the time comes.

When a vanquished enemy seeks reparations from a victor, and is backed up by one of the victor's allies, then peace hath its farces not less ridiculous than war.

Russia has hundreds of thousands of friends in Canada actively supporting her and disparaging Britain. Will one of these come forward to defend publicly, as they all do privately, her attitude in backing up Bulgaria, a former enemy, in its demand for reparations against Greece, an ally who was an enemy of Germany when Russia was a friend?

The flapper vote in England will understand and appreciate why she does not wish to give up a man-date.

Canada Tourist Bargain Land

Americans, faced with rising prices on every side, are still finding Canada a tourist's bargain land, despite the return of the Canadian dollar to parity with its U.S. cousin. The Financial Post remarks editorially. The U.S. dollar, even at par can buy a bigger holiday in Canada than it can at home.

"Even before OPA toppled, it had, since 1943, been lifted so far as rent control in resort areas was concerned," The Post states. "Prices at American play spots this year have gone notably haywire. Hotel rooms, normally renting at $3 to $5 have been reported up to $17 and $20 a day; a seashore apartment that could be had for $250 the season last year, today has its tenant for a cool $1,300; swimming pools and other routine privileges have suddenly become high-priced extras on the resort bill. All this, before the general removal of U.S. price control. Where the top may be is anybody's guess.

"But in Canada rentals control remains in resort areas as elsewhere, assuring vacationists that a dollar's worth of currency still will buy a dollar's worth of accommodation."

May Be Light Polio Cases

Dr. W. Hill, M.H.O. of Calgary, says that there are many slight cases of infantile paralysis not reported. These cases are often put down to slight colds, as no paralysis is apparent and the youngsters may favor a limb for only a few days. These cases form immunity against the disease in its more serious form, but may also become carriers.

Infantile paralysis is not considered an infectious disease, says Dr. Hill. It is seldom that more than one case appears in one family, though contacts are quarantined for a couple of weeks as a precaution.

Rhymes of Alta. Range Days

Westerners who have read with pleasure the verses of Catharine Bond Dick, which have appeared in various publications from time to time, will be happy to learn that these verses have been assembled in booklet form, and will soon be on sale at all the bookstands. Under the apt title "Trails I've Ridden," over fifty of Mrs. Dick's poems are included in this attractive booklet, which carries a fine picture of the author. The dedication, which is characteristic of Mrs. Dick reads: "Dedicated to my rangeland friends and those who, during the years I have lived in the west, have extended to me real Western friendship; and also to those many, many strangers I have met during these later years and who are today making our West, and our Canada, a land of friendly people, and who are carrying that spirit of friendliness throughout the world."

Just as the emphasis of the dedication is "friendliness," the same spirit is the keynote of her verses. All who know her are aware of Mrs. Dick's love of nature and of the out-of-doors. This gives to her verses a note of authority and feeling that vitalize them. She writes of what she knows and loves; of emotions and sentiments to which all who are familiar with Alberta foothills will respond. She has a sense of rhythm and a feeling for words that make the verses melodious as well as meaningful.

While topics vary widely, covering experiences in peace and war, the majority of the poems hark back to range life, horse and saddle and the open trail. One of the most vivid is "The Foothill Chinook," another is "Our Heritage," and still another is "The Real Spring." The influence of the war and her constant association with young people of the services is expressed in many of her later poems. Everyone who reads this collection of verse will have his own favorites, finding in Mrs. Dick's pictures a rhythmical wording of his own experiences. One of the chief charms is that the writing is so natural, a spontaneous expression of the writer's own philosophy of life and the richness she has found in all relationships.

The Epilogue is particularly fitting, as expressive of Mrs. Dick's personality, and the spirit that pervades the assembled poems: "This was the Creed of the Pioneers 'Twas a creed they could not forget. 'Lock not my door to any man' 'Twas a Creed above friendship or debt."

Admits Killing Of Donald Goss

Donald Staley, 29 years of age, now serving in Lethbridge for breaking and entering, has confessed to the murder of six-year-old Donald Goss of Calgary, and 11 old Garry Billings of Vancouver. He was discharged from the army at Vancouver on June 24. On July 24 the decomposed body of the Billings boy was found in Vancouver, and a warrant for Staley's arrest in this connection was issued by Vancouver police. He came to Calgary on July 22 and was arrested on Aug. 12 on charge of entering the Diamond cafe, pleaded guilty and receiving sentence of 15 months hard labor. Donald Goss disappeared on July 24, his body being found next night in St. George's Island.

A four-inch paring knife was found by the police in Staley's possession, and a study of this knife brought him under suspicion. Vancouver and Calgary police went down to Lethbridge jail where he allegedly made his confession Saturday night.

Goss' body was found the night of July 25, with knife stabbings and evidence of criminal assault. On the same day the battered body of the Vancouver boy was found. He had disappeared from his home July 5, and, according to a young companion, had been lured to meet the stranger in army clothes with promise of ice cream and peanuts.

Direct links were followed by the police to lead to Staley, but he is not under suspicion in connection with a similar killing in Winnipeg. The trials will be held later in Calgary and then in Vancouver.

BANKING IN ACTION

RETAILERS make constant use of banking services. In some cases these are simple but essential; the bank takes cash receipts on deposit, makes change, operates current accounts, and accepts and records used ration coupons. Other retail accounts involve considerable handling of drafts, and—a very important service—the making of loans to enable retailers to take advantage of trade discounts. All this entails Banking in Action.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce has among its customers many retail houses, from the small corner store to the large chain and department store. Strict attention to their particular needs is given to all the Bank's customers.

Use our services for your banking requirements, whatever they may be. Consult our local Manager.

Dr. Hill Sees Raw Milk Danger

Dr. Hill, M.H.O. of Calgary, says: "The eleven cases of undulant fever reported in Calgary are all chronic cases and all give a history of having consumed raw milk."

Symptoms of undulant fever are high and undulating temperature; rheumatism, arthritis and similar pains, a run-down condition and minor complaints.

"So far nothing has been of any particular value in the treatment of the disease. The only protection is the pasteurization of the milk supply in view of the fact that in Southern Alberta practically all herds of cattle show in some degree Bang's disease, one source of undulant fever in human beings. All milk offered for sale in Calgary since September, 1945, has been pasteurized voluntarily," said Dr. Hill.

The condition can be contracted from drinking unpasteurized milk from infected herds of cattle or goats or by handling infected meat.

The onset of both diseases is gradual and accompanied by fever, sweating and chills. The patient may be able to get around. The spleen is quite frequently enlarged. The symptoms may continue for weeks, months, and in some instances for years. The fever tends to recur without any other causes than the disease itself.
